EARNING EDUCATION

STATE UNIVERSITY STUDENTS THAT EARN THEIR WAY.

Many Occupations That Help Out—How Some of Students Have Won Elevated Position in Life.

It was no uncommon thing back in the days of the "little red schoolhouse" for aspiring students to eke out a scanty allowance by any and every sort of money earning; splitting wood, I believe, was the favorite occupation, the surest of return. We recently came across notice that a very large part of the students at the University of Missouri were paying their expenses themselves, and were interested to find out what they worked at.

The report of the university publisher points with pride to some of the alumni that likewise labored when they were getting an education, and in illustration that a boy appreciates an education so obtained, attention is called to the rise in life of these industrious ones. Judge J. L. Torrey, author of the Torrey bankruptcy bill; the late Congressman Cooney; B. T. Galloway, chief of the division of vegetable philosophy and pathology. United States department of agriculture, Washington; W. R. Dodson, in charge of agricultural education in Louisiana.

These successful ones tell of their early struggles with a certain pride. Judge Torrey added to his scant income by playing man with the hoe, by pruning grapes, shucking corn, and acting as commissary of the boarding department. Congressman Cooney taught school—the time-honored method of "getting a start"—sold apple trees and took contracts for cutting corn and broom corn. Speaking of this stage of his life, he once remarked: "In the vacations I earned in the harvest and hay fields about $50, and I earned $15 cutting weeds and building a fence on the state farm. The world looked upon me as a poor young man, but I regarded that as a joke. I had enough to lend a fellow student sufficient to pay his board for six months without charging a cent of interest. I never felt so rich in all my life as during those years I spent in the university."

The New York Tribune, commenting on the number of young men today "down Missouri," that are independently striving for an education, gives the following ways in which they attain the almighty: One is manager of athletics; two book agents; one driver of a bread wagon; one a barber; three bookkeepers; seven canvassers; 22 clerks; six paper carriers; four commissaries; one a carpenter; one a dish washer; and seven electricians. Fourteen rise at four o'clock in the morning to build fires in the furnaces; four make gardens and clean yards; two work on the state farm; four are musicians, 28 do housework. Then there are 12 janitors, two librarians, eight laundry agents, a leather worker, a boarding house keeper. Two milk cows at the state farm, 12 make mechanical drawings and 16 are engaged in various kinds of newspaper work; four are listed as doing odd jobs; there are seven that work at printing, seven press clothes, three find return in photographic work, two are painters, seven are stenographers, four work at surveying, 23 are teachers, one does cabinet work, one is a clerk in a bank, seven are waiters, one manages and cooks for a club. And here, too, we find the author, that omnipresent fellow these days; for two do literary work on magazines.

Mr. Dodson, one of the successful early strivers, recently talked to a group of students of his early struggles, and his experiences might encourage the moneyless but energetic lads of the present. He worked at the state farm and on the horticultural grounds at the rate of ten cents an hour; cleaned rooms; and did general work about a house. In vacations he found different means of providing a sum for future schooling; one summer acted as coachman, one summer taught school.

Of course the above means often a youth must study when pretty tired, must labor when he needs to be at his books; but take it all in all, it is not such a bad way of beginning one's fight in life—unless, indeed, overwork brings loss of health, and then the price is immeasurably too big. But we have in mind boys of the other sort that seem to us anything but successes, who have taken as a matter of course funds advanced them by sacrificing relatives. Often it is better for a boy to get things hard.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED

At the Louisville Convention United Confederate Vets.

Whereas, at our reunion of 1904, our federation turned over to the Sons, the sacred duty of raising the funds for the Memorial to the Women of the Confederacy; and

Whereas, in so doing we never relinquish our deep and abiding love for the cause, or our intention to aid and assist it by every means in our power; and

Whereas, we have clearly shown this, by our appointment of a committee to co-operate and by the work, which this committee and many other veterans in all parts of the South, have done during the past year; and

Whereas, it will ever be our most earnest desire to see this tribute paid to our glorious women and we are most anxious to further co-operate with and give substantial aid to our Sons in the performance of this sacred duty; therefore be it resolved:

1st. That each camp of the United Confederate Veterans, immediately after the adjournment of this convention and the return home of its delegates, shall appoint a committee to actively canvass its respective community to raise funds for this Memorial to the Women of the Confederacy, to which noble, worthy and just object this federation has repeatedly and solemnly pledged itself and its comrades.

2nd. That in case any camp does not take action within one month by appointing this committee, it shall then become the duty of its commander to make appointment of such committee.

If no action is then taken by the commander any member of the camp who is enthused with that high sense of his duty to this holy cause, and desires to honor our Godlike women, is urged to personally take charge of the matter, secure the endorsement of his local camp or its officers and make such collections as he can from his community.

3rd. That all funds collected under resolutions one and two, shall be deposited in some home bank—at interest—to the credit of the chairman of the United Confederate Veterans' committee of co-operation, (Gen'l C. Irvine Walker, Charleston, S. C.) and that he shall be promptly advised of such deposit.

4th. That the above resolutions are not intended to be obligatory upon such camps as have already contributed to this fund $50 or more.

5th. That each camp is urged to endeavor to raise from its community, as its quota, at the very least, the sum of $50.

6th. That all camps shall complete this work by January 1st, 1906, and on that date make a report of the results achieved to the chairman of our committee of co-operation, (Gen'l C. Irvine Walker, Charleston, S. C.)

THANKSGIVING AND REJOICING

Among the Farmers of Robertson County, Tennessee.

SATISFACTORY SALES.

Tireless Work of Col. Ewing In the Interest of the Growers.

Adams, Tenn., July 15, 1905.

To say that the farmers of Adams are in a genuine state of thanksgiving and rejoicing would but put the proposition in mild terms. Despite the report of the trust buyers and enemies of the association, that the tobacco could not be sold, that the farmers would never realize as much for it as they were paying, that the cost of selling it would eat up all the profits, and that they could not get an advance on their tobacco, the patient farmer waited to see all of these falsehoods crucified on the heads or the lips of the false prophets. In order to break up the association, it is known that the trust buyer has paid largely more, and in many instances double the price paid for the same tobacco last year, and to dissatisfy the farmer, told him that he would never net as much from the association. The Bank of Adams, with a limited capital, and having been in existence but two years, came nobly to the rescue and agreed to advance $10,000, but up to the present time has advanced $40,000. The returns from the first sales came in this week and in every instance the farmer received in good money, after paying all expenses, more money than the trusts had offered. The expense to his surprise, all told for prizing, selling and placing on the market and putting the money in his pocket, was only 90 cents per hundred on this sale. It cost parties last year who would not take 5 and 2 from the trusts, $1.05 to sell on the market at Clarksville. In addition to all this, Sterling Fort, cashier of the Bank of Adams, received a telegram from Mr. Rousens in New York, advising him that he could get $4 per one hundred pounds on tobacco stored at Adams and to make sight draft on him for same when needed. When all of these facts were made known, those true and loyal farmers who were making a brave and gallant fight for home and suffering humanity, against a merciless trust, is it any wonder that there was rejoicing in the tents of Israel. The fact has been demonstrated that we can sell our tobacco at a price that is remunerative, in spite of the trusts, and that the tobacco grower will no longer submit to the robbery of the past few years.

Let every man who even doubts any fact herein stated call on W. C. Warfield, president of the Adams Warehouse, or Sterling Fort, cashier of the Bank of Adams, and they will show him the books and names. Ninety-four hogsheads of tobacco were sold from the Adams warehouse this week, and the information is that it will be only a short time till the 300 hogsheads now in the warehouse will all be sold and shipped out. There is a poor widow living in the 7th district of Robertson county, who sold her tobacco last year for 4 and 2, and in this recent sale by the Association, received $10 per each one hundred pounds. She is happy now and demonstrates the reward of a righteous faith. Another farmer living in the 6th district of said county, received 5 and 2 last year from the trust and in the association he received $10 per one hundred pounds. Mr. F. G. Ewing, the tireless leader in this fight, is at Tate's Springs for his health. He has worked unceasingly in this noble cause, till he has almost sacrificed his health and his physician advised that he must have rest or lose his health permanently. His many friends had to insist and almost force him to take this much needed rest. He is, however, in close touch with the details of the association and uses the telephone and telegraph wires to direct and counsel his committee. The seed he has sown by so much hard labor and expense to himself, is now beginning to bring forth an abundant harvest. All he asks of the tobacco growers

Relief in a Few Days.

NERVOUSNESS AND WEAKNESS CURED BY PE-RU-NA.

Miss Sadie Robinson, 4 Rand street, Malden, Mass., writes:

"Foruna was recommended to me about a year ago as an excellent remedy for the troubles peculiar to our sex, and as I found that all that was said of this medicine was true, I am pleased to endorse it."

"I began to use it about seven months ago for weakness and nervousness, caused from overwork and sleeplessness, and found that in a few days I began to grow strong, my appetite increased and I began to sleep better, consequently my nervousness passed away and the weakness in the pelvic organs soon disappeared and I have been well and strong ever since."

Sell Where They Wish.

Chairman W. W. Radford asks us to publish this form of the agreement the farmers are signing:

"We, the undersigned persons whose signatures appear below, hereby appoint, engage and employ, irrevocably, the Dark Tobacco Planters' Association, as our sole agent to sell for us, our respective crops of tobacco, to be raised by us, or that we may own or control, during the year 1905. We agree and bind ourselves to it, to prepare for market, all the tobacco we may raise, or own or control, during the year 1905, in the way and manner it may desire or designate, and deliver the same at the place, and to the person it may name, and to allow it to have full and complete control of the sale of the same, and agree to abide by and to conform to all of its decisions and acts, and to fulfill all its contracts and agreements connected with the preparation, delivery or sale of said tobacco."

SAD ACCIDENT

Mars the Pleasure of River Excursion.

The pleasure boat, "The Shamrock," when three miles above Valley View, on the Kentucky river, struck a steel guy line which tore off the pilot house of the boat and swept more than half a dozen of the fifty passengers into the stream. Miss Nancy Carpenter was drowned and several men and women were severely injured. One of the passengers, Miss Brookshire, was thrown out, but was rescued by two young men of the party.
